For the first time ever, a retired Supreme Court Justice offers a manifesto on how the Constitution needs to change. By the time of his retirement in June 2010, John Paul Stevens had become the second longest serving Justice in the history of the Supreme Court. Now he draws upon his more than three decades on the Court, during which he was involved with many of the defining decisions of the ...

Six Amendments How And Why

The purpose of most of these six proposed amendments is (he says) to get the understanding of the constitution back to what it originally was (regarding these issues), rather than to change its meaning. Two of the six amendments, I think, would have very broad support among the general public (on gerrymandering and campaign finance).
